Surface Deformation in a Liquid-Solid Flow
Melany L. Hunt, California Institute of Technology

Impact particles and polished aluminum surfaces

Surface indentation resulting from a collision in water and glycerol at St=950.

Coefficient of restitution (rebound velocity normalized by impact velocity) as a function of Stokes number, St. The symbol size shows the crater depth in meters. The different colors correspond to different material properties.